UNBENIGN. adj. Malignant; malevolent.
To th' other five
Their planetary motions, and aspects,
In textile, square, and trine, and opposite,
Of noxious efficacy; and when to join
In synod unbeneign. Milton's Par. Lost, b. x. l. 661.

UNBENT. adj.
1. Not strained by the string.
Apollo heard, and conqu'ring his disdain,
Unbent his bow, and Greece inspir'd again. Dryden.
2. Having the bow unstrung.
Why hast thou gone so far,
To be unbent when thou hast ta'en thy stand,
Th' elected deer before thee? Shakep. Cymbeline.
3. Not crushed; not subdued.
But thou, secure of soul, unbent with woes,
The more thy fortune frowns, the more oppos'd. Dryden.
4. Relaxed; not intent.
Be not always on affairs intent,
But let thy thoughts be easy and unbent:
When our mind's eyes are disengag'd and free,
They clearer, farther, and distinctly see. Denham.

UNBESPEAKING. adj. Unbecoming.
No emotion of passion transported me by the indignity of his carriage, to do or say any thing unbecoming myself. K. Charles.
Uncomely courage, unbecoming skill. Thomson.

UNBESPOUGHT. adj. Not intended.
Left heat should injure us, his timely care
Hath, unbesought, provided; and his hands
Cloath'd us unworthy; pitying while he judg'd. Milton.

UNBESTOWED. adj. Not given; not disposed of.
He had now but one son and one daughter unbested. Bacon.

UNBETRAYED. adj. Not betrayed.
Many being privy to the fact,
How hard is it to keep it unbetray'd? Daniel's Civil War.

UNBETRAYED. adj. Not betrayed.
Hold unbetray'd their way. Shakep. Ant. and Cleopatra.

TO UNBETRAYED. v. a. [from unbetray.] To free from fascination.
TO UNBIASS. v. a. To free from any external motive; to disentangle from prejudice.
That our understandings may be free to examine, and reason unbias'd give its judgment; being that whereon a right direction of our conduct to true happiness depends; it is in this we should employ our chief care. Locke.
The standing evidences of the gospel, every time they are consider'd, gain upon sincere, unbias'd minds. Atterbury.
The truest service a private man may do his country, is by unbiasing his mind, as much as possible, between the rival powers. Swift.
Where's the man who counsel can bestow,
Unbias'd, or by favour, or by spite;
Not dully prepossess'd, nor blindly right. Pope.

UNBIASSEDLY. adj. Without external influence; without prejudice.
I have fought the true meaning; and have unbias'dly embraced what, upon a fair enquiry, appeared so to me. Locke.

UNBID. adj.
1. Uninvited.
Unbidden guests
Are often welcome when they are gone. Shakep.
2. Uncommanded; spontaneous.
Thorns also and thistles it shall bring thee forth Unbid. Milton's Par. Lost, b. x. l. 204.
Roses unbid, and ev'ry fragrant flow'r,
Flew from their stalks, to strow thy nuptial bow'r. Dryden.
Unbidden earth shall wreathing ivy bring,
And fragrant herbs the promises of spring. Dryden.

UNBOTTLED. adj. Free from bigotry.
Erasmus, who was an unbottled Roman Catholic, was so much transported with this passage of Socrates, that he could scarce forbear looking upon him as a saint, and desiring him to pray for him. Addison.

TO UNBOUND. v. a. [from bind.] To loose; to untie.
His own woe's author, who bound it finds,
As did Pyrocles, and it willfully unbinds. Fairy Queen.
Ye Latian dames,
If there be here, who dare maintain
My right, nor think the name of mother vain,
Unbind your fillets, loose your flowing hair,
And orgies, and nocturnal rites prepare. Dryden.
On the sixth instant it was thought fit to unbind his head. Tatler, N^o. 55.

TO UNBOTTLE. v. a. [from bind.] To deprive of episcopal orders.
I cannot look upon Titus as so far unbottled yet, but that he still exhibits to us all the essentials of jurisdiction. South.

UNBOTTLED. adj. [from bind.] Unbridled; unrestrained.
We have reason to cool our raging motions, our carnal fings, our unbottled lusts; whereof I take this love to be a rect or cyon. Shakep. Othello.

UNBLAMABLE. adj. Not culpable; not to be charged with a fault.
Much more could I say concerning this unblamable inequality of fines and rates. Bacon.
He lov'd his people, him they idoliz'd;
And thence proceeds my mortal hatred to him;
That thus unblamable to all beside,
He err'd to me alone. Dryden's Den Seafision.

UNBLAMABLY. adv. Without taint of fault.
Ye are witnesses, and God also, how holily, and justly, and unblamably we behaved ourselves. 1 Thess. ii. 10.

UNBLAMED. adj. Blameless; free from fault.
Shall spend your days in joy unblam'd, and dwell
Long time in peace. Milton's Par. Lost, b. xii. l. 22.
Unblam'd, abundance crown'd her royal board,
What time this dome rever'd her prudent lord,
Who now is doom'd to mourn. Pope's Odyssey.

UNBLEMISHED. adj. Free from turpitude; free from reproach;
free from deformity.
O welcome, pure-eyed faith, white-handed hope;
Thou hovering angel, girt with golden wings,
And thou unblemish'd form of chastity.
Under this stone lies virtue, youth,
Unblemish'd probity, and truth.
Is none worthy to be made a wife
In all this town? Suppose her free from strife, Rich, fair, and fruitful; of unblemish'd life. Dryden.
They appointed, out of these new converts, men of the best sense, and of the most unblemish'd lives, to preside over these several assemblies. Addison.

UNBLEMISHED. adj. Not mingled.
None can boast a knowledge depure from defilement, within this atmosphere of flesh; it dwells no where in unblemished proportions on this side the empyreum. Glancille.

UNBLEMISHED. adj. Not disgraced; not injured by any fault.
There, where very defilement dwells,
She may pass on with unblemish'd majesty;
Be it not done in pride, or in presumption. Milton.

UNBLEST. adj.
1. Accursed; excluded from benediction.
It is a shameful and unblest thing, to take the scum of people, and wicked, condemned men, to be the people with whom you plant. Bacon.
2. Wretched; unhappy.
It lies yet, ere conception, to prevent
The race unblest, to being yet unbegot. Milton.
What is true passion, if unblest it dies?
And where is Emma's joy, if Henry flies? Prior.

UNBLOODED. adj. Not stained with blood.
Who finds the partridge in the puttock's nest,
But may imagine how the bird was dead,
Although the kite fear with unbloody beak. Shakep.

UNBLOODY. adj. Not cruel; not shedding blood; not stained with blood.
Under the ledge of Atlas lies a cave,
The venerable seat of holy hermits,
Who there, secure in separated cells,
From the purling streams, and savage fruits,
Have wholesome bev'rage, and unbloody feasts. Dryden.

UNBLOWN. adj. Having the bud yet unexpanded.
Ah! my poor prince! Ah! my tender babes!
My unblown flowers, new-appearing sweets! Shakep.

UNBLUNTED. adj. Not becoming obtuse.
A sword, whose weight without a blow might flay;
Able, unblunted, to cut hosts away. Cervantes's David.

UNBODIED. adj.
1. Incorporeal; immaterial.
If we could conceive of things as angels and unbodied spirits do, without involving them in those clouds language throws upon them, we should seldom be in danger of such mistakes as are perpetually committed. Watson's Logic.
2. Freed from the body.
She hath the bonds broke of eternal night;
Her soul unbodied of the burdensome corpse. Spenser.
All things are but alter'd, nothing dies;
And here and there th' unbodily spirit flies. Dryden.

UNBOILED. adj. Not sodden.
A quarter of a pint of rice unboiled, will arise to a pint boiled. Bacon.

TO UNBOTTLE. v. a. To set open; to unbar.
I'll call my uncle down;
He shall unbind the gates. Shakep. Troilus and Cressida.

UNBOTTLED. adj. Coarse; gross; not refined, as flour by bolting or sifting.
I will tread this unbottled villain into mortar, and dash the wall of a jakes with him. Shakep. Henry's K. Lear.

UNBONNETTED. adj. Wanting a hat or bonnet.
This night, wherein
The lion, and the belly-pinched wolf
Keep their fur dry; unbunnetted he runs,
And bids what will, take all. Shakep. K. Lear.

UNBORN. adj.
1. Not cultivated by erudition.
As he shall smile, Othello shall go mad;
And his unbosk'd jealousy must confute
Poor Cassio's smiles, gestures, and light behaviour, Quite in the wrong. Shakep. Othello.

UNBORN. adj. Not yet brought into life; future; being to come.
Some unborn sorrow, ripe in fortune's womb,
Is coming tow'r'd me. Shakep. Richard II.
The woes to come, the children yet unborn
Shall feel this day, as sharp to them as thorn. Shakep.
Never so much as in a thought unborn,
Did I offend you. Shakep. As you like it.
He on the wings of cherubim
Up-lijst, in paternal glory rode Far into chaos, and the world unborn. Milton's Par. Lost.
To what wretched state reserv'd!
Better end here unborn! Why is life giv'n
To be thus waded from us? Milton's Par. Lost.
A queen, from whom
The souls of kings unborn for bodies wait. Dryden.

UNBORROWED. adj. Genuine; native; one's own.
But the luxurious father of the fold,
With native purple, and unborrow'd gold,
Beneath his pompous fleece shall proudly sweat. Dryden.
In substances, especially those which the common and unborrow'd names of any language are applied to, some remarkable, sensible qualities, serve to distinguish one from another. Locke.

UNBOTTLED. adj.
1. Without bottom; bottomless.
The dark, unbottled, infinite abyss. Milton.
2. Having no solid foundation.
This is a special act of christian hope, to be thus unbostomed of ourselves, and fastened upon God, with a full reliance, trust, and dependance on his mercy. Hammond.

TO UNBOTTLE. v. a.
1. To reveal in confidence.
I lov'd thee, as too well thou knew'st;
Too well, unbosom'd all my secrets to thee,
Not out of levity, but overpower'd
By thy request, who could deny thee nothing. Milton.
Do we unbosom all our secrets to him, and hide nothing that passeth in the depth of our hearts from him? Atterbury.
2. To open; to disclose.
Should I thence, hurried on viewless wing,
Take up a weeping on the mountains wild,
The gentle neighbourhood of grove and spring
Would soon unbosom all their echo's mild. Milton.

UNBOTTLED. adj.
1. Obtained without money.
The unbosom'd dainties of the poor. Dryden's Horace.
2. Not finding any purchaser.
The merchant will leave our native commodities unbought upon the hands of the farmer, rather than export them to a market, which will not afford him returns with profit. Locke.

UNBOTTLED. adj.
1. Loose; not tied.
2. Wanting a cover.
He that has complex ideas, without particular names for them, would be in no better case than a bookfeller, who had volumes that lay unbosom'd, and without titles; which he could make known to others, only by shewing the loose sheets. Locke.
3. Preterite of unbosom.
Some from their chains the faithful dogs unbosom'd. Dryden.

UNBOTTLED. adj.
1. Infinite; interminable.
Long were to tell what I have done;
I voyag'd the unreal, vast, unbosom'd deep
Of horrible confusion. Milton.
The wide, th' unbosom'd prospect lies before me;
But shadows, clouds, and darkness rest upon it. Addison.
2. Unlimited; unrestrained.
He was a man
Of an unbosom'd stomach, ever ranking Himself with princes. Shakep. Henry VI.
He had given his curiosity its full, unbosom'd range, and ex-amin'd not only in contemplation, but by sensitive experiment, whatever could be good for the sons of men. Decay of Piety.

UNBOTTLED. adv. Without bounds; without limits.
So unbosom'dly mischievous is that petulant member, that heaven and earth are not wide enough for its range, but it will find work at home too. Government of the Tongue.

UNBOTTLED. n. s. Exemption from limits.
Finitude, applied to created things, imports the proportions of the several properties of these things to one another. Infinitude, the unbosom'dness of these degrees of properties. Cicero.

UNBOTTLED. adj. Not bent.
He knits his brow, and frowns an angry eye,
And passeth by with stiff, unbosom'd knee,
Disdaining duty that to us belongs. Shakep. Hen. VI.

U N B

TO UNBOTTLE. v. n. To exenterate; to eviscerate.
In this chapter I'll unbosom'd the state of the question. Hakewill.
It is now become a new species of divinity, to branch out with fine distinctions our holy faith, which the pious simplicity of the first christians received to practice; not to read upon as an anatomy, unbosom'd and dissect to try experiments. Decay of Piety.

TO UNBOTTLE. v. a.
1. To loose; to relax.
With whose reproach and odious menace,
The knight embosom'd in his haughty heart,
Knit all his forces, and gau foot unbosom'd
His grasping hold. Fairy Queen, b. 2. c. 4. st. 9.
Somewhat of mournful sure my ears does wound;
Drums unbosom'd, with soldiers broken cries. Dryden.
Nought shall the palsy and the harp avail,
When the quick spirits their warm march forbear,
And numbing coldness has unbosom'd the ear. Prior.
Wasting years, that wither human race,
Exhaust thy spirits, and thy arms unbosom'd. Pope's Iliad.
2. To make the clothes loose.
